RESTED THEIR CASE

Attorneys For Fire Insurance Companies Now Examining Witnesses.

Corporation Court reconvened Tuesday at 3 p. m. and Mr. Brown was questioned by the State. Mr. A. Randolph Howard was recalled and also questioned as to the books.

Mr. E. W. Carter took the stand and was examined about the invoices of the company.

The attorneys for the Shirt Co. were not understanding that they would recall Mr. Tapscott when he was well enough to take the stand.

Tuesday morning the court convened at 10:30 and the fire insurance companies, Mr. Asa Falkner, an expert shirt factory man from Charlottesville, testified as to the quantity of goods it took to make certain styles of overalls, etc. He gave an illustration on the tables in the courtroom as to how the overalls were cut.

Mr. Fitzhugh said it seemed as if the courtroom would be turned into an overall factory. Judge Phillips, however, the overalls were cut.

Mr. Fitzhugh enjoyed the illustrations. Mr. Fitzhugh then left the courtroom and told Mr. Carter to enter objections to all that foolishness.

Mr. J. A. Fulton, one of the owners and managers of a shirt factory in Staunton, was the next witness. He was asked a number of questions about the making of overalls, as to the quantity of material it required to make a dozen, etc.

Mr. J. R. Jolly, a dry goods merchant of Petersburg, took the stand. He testified that he had purchased overalls from the Virginia Shirt Company and stated what he paid per dozen, etc.

At this point court adjourned until 2:30 p. m.

CORPORATION COURT

Still Engaged With Shirt Factory Case.

Only one witness, J. R. Riddick, of E. H. Pitts & Co., Richmond, was examined in the shirt factory case Tuesday afternoon. He purchased overalls from the Virginia Shirt Co. and exhibited samples of his purchases. After this counsel for the insurance companies stated they were ready to put Mr. McKinney, an expert bookkeeper on the stand and asked Mr. Fitzhugh to put Mr. Tapscott on the stand first if he intended doing so at all. Mr. Fitzhugh said Mr. Tapscott would be physically able to testify, and at the judge adjourned court until Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

NEGRO TRIED TO ESCAPE

Brought To Jail Here By Sergeant Chichester

HAD STOLEN BICYCLE AND PISTOLS

Two colored men who work on the Spotsylvania road notified sergeant J. C. Chichester that a bicycle had been stolen from the camp. He received a phone message from O. L. Scott, clerk at M. L. McGhee's store, at Screemerville, that a negro was there and wanted to sell a bicycle for $5. He went at once to Screemerville and arrived just as the train for Orange rolled into the station. He found the negro there eating cheese and crackers and ready to take the train. He was put under arrest. Besides the bicycle he had about 20 yards of which he had sold to Mr. Scott for $1. The sergeant made him give the money back and took the pistols. He brought him here. On the way to the Southern road, where he lived and that he bought the bicycle from a man in town whom he had broken at a crap game, at the ground and the bullet threw dirt on him and made him run faster. He was followed and captured on Main street, near Cassidy's drug store. He offered $4 for his release, but was brought back and locked in jail. It is a county case and will be tried at Spotsylvania. After the trial the bicycle and pistols will be returned to the owners.

FREDERICKSBURG'S VICTORY

College Team Defeated Woodberry Forest in Splendid Game.

Fredericksburg College shook off its losing hoodoo Monday, and amid the cheers of a large crowd of rooters won from Woodberry by a score of 5 to 0 on the latter's gridiron.

The home team went into the game with the intention of rolling up a big score, but they soon found that the sure tackling of the Woodberry backs forestalled that idea.

For the first two quarters each team played furious ball and only once was Fredericksburg's goal threatened, then it was that Robertson tried a place kick from the thirty yard line, but the ball fell short.

At the beginning of the third quarter young ladies from the College it is said and the play became faster than ever. Woodberry made several successful forward passes in succession and got the ball well down the field. On the next play Mills tackled a runner, making him fumble. Rowe gathered up the ball and with the whole Woodberry team at his heels, ran about 50 yards before being downed. Barrett threw him on the two-yard line. Caldwell carried it 11-2 yards and Mills tore through for the touchdown.

During the remainder of the game the ball was kept near the center of the field. With one minute to play Weaver received a forward pass, before being downed. Barrett threw him a bicycle for a look like another touchdown. Hyslop overhauled him after a pretty run of about 30 yards.

Woodberry's work was much quicker and surer than Fredericksburg's and several times seriously threatened the goal.

But for the routing of a large crowd of young ladies from the College it is said that Fredericksburg would hardly have won.

Barrett, Robertson and Hyslop were best for Woodberry and Weaver, Mills and Brooks starred for Fredericksburg.

COMMODORE MATTHEW FONTAINE MAURY

IN HONOR OF MAURY

Tablet Unveiled in Richmond To Mark Former Home of Great Commodore.

The Confederate Memorial Literary Society of Richmond, on Wednesday at 11:30 a. m., unveiled a handsome tablet to mark the site, at 1105 East Clay street, of the residence of Matthew Fontaine Maury, the great Virginian, whose services the Federal government has refused to recognize, although the world of science honors his memory as that of one of the greatest of men.

Born in Spotsylvania county in 1806, Matthew Fontaine Maury entered the U. S. Navy in his sixteenth year, serving until the outbreak of the Civil War, when, offering his services to the Confederacy, he was appointed Chief of the Bureau of River, Harbor and Coast Defenses of the South, and as such lived in Richmond for several years. He was then sent to England to purchase Confederate cruisers, and there remained until the close of hostilities, when, going to Mexico, he was appointed to the Cabinet of the Emperor Maximilian and was subsequently sent on a mission to Europe. Napoleon offered him the presidency of the Imperial Observatory at Paris, which he declined, preferring to accept the chair of physics at the Virginia Military Institute, which he held till his death at Lexington in 1882.

Very few citizens of his native State realize the wonderful genius of the man or appreciate his remarkable work. His physical geography was long the standard authority on the subjects treated. Of his connection with laying the first Atlantic cable, Cyrus Field said: "England furnished the money. Maury furnished the brains and I did the work." He was the leader in the establishment of the National Weather Bureau and the Government Signal Service. He invented the method of "defense under water," developing the idea of the modern torpedo boat, and made his original experiments in the bed chamber, third story front room of 1105 Clay Street, by exploding minute charges of powder under water in an ordinary wash tub. In the world famous ocean charts gained for him the name of the "Pathfinder of the Seas." Numerous medals and honors were presented him by foreign monarchs in recognition of his distinguished services in the field of science.

In honor of this great man and marking his residence in Richmond, the tablet was unveiled Wednesday. Gov. Mann presided. Dr. James Power Smith, a former comrade in arms of Commodore Maury, offered prayer. The High School choir of 500 children sang Confederate hymns. The orator of the occasion was Judge R. T. W. Duke, of Charlottesville. The tablet was unveiled by one of the direct descendants of the great commodore, and two of his daughters, Mrs. James R. Werth, of Richmond, and Mrs. M. L. Van Doren, of Bonhome Farm, Abbeville county, were also present. Grandchildren present were Miss Ann H. Maury, Miss Alice McKee, and Mrs. J. J. Battershill, Manager. Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Van Doren.
